History of Rootie's

Although Rootie's did not invent the Buffalo-style chicken wing, it sure went a long way to perfect this culinary delight. Award winning, authenticity counts as the tradition lives on in Louisville with Rootie's arrival from Buffalo, New York and Coconut Creek, Florida. What sets Rootie's apart from the rest? Rootie's award winning, nationally renowned signature charcoal-grilled barbecued chicken wings made with, of course, Rootie's Famous Gourmet Barbecue Sauce. It is uniquely thick, hickory smoked and spicy. This product, as well as Rootie's Famous Gourmet Blue Cheese Dressing and Dip, is manufactured and distributed by Rootie's sister company, Rootie's Foods International, Inc. Both items are sold in many independent and chain supermarkets in the western New York area and on-line at buffalofoods.com. In the Louisville restaurant, Rootie's Barbecue Sauce, a "Kentucky Proud" product, is served and available for sale. It is also available at Louisville area grocers and gift shops (see rooties.com). Since June 1, 1978, this former Buffalo, New York landmark and south Florida favorite have accumulated fame and notoriety that have developed its rich history. Rootie's has been on "Live: Regis and Kathie Lee" January 27, 1993, "Mr. Food" segments, "The Today Show" August 31, 1996, "AM-Buffalo" and the list goes on. Rootie's recipes for authentic, Buffalo-style chicken wings appear in "Entertaining with Regis and Kathie Lee" cookbook, October 1994.
